The Evolution of Sport

The Stone Age is an interesting time;
the spirit of sports is as sour as a lime.

Competition and Death is what it’s about;
all they seem to do is Shout! Shout! Shout!

When rocks and boulders get sent to the air,
the crowd is on the edge of their chairs.

Grinding their teeth and biting their nails
they thirst for serious injuries and embarrassing fails.

2015, the present day:

Things are different as we all have a say.

Technology is now a big part of sport;
the fans online give lots of support.

Players wait for the whistle to blow,
hoping for all their talents to show.

Tensions are running through the air;
the excitement will be raising your hair.

The future of sports is still a mystery;
all of the above is now just history!

Quidditch, Flying Chess and Underwater horse Polo,
these are the things that you will never do solo.

Team spirit is the basis of success,
and a smile on your face will always impress.
I’m looking forward to the future of sport,

But before all that we have lots to be taught!

John Bonsato

St. William’s Catholic Primary School.